

GAME OF TAG: Rod Smith, of Wildlife Inc., labels some of the 450 creatures that will be auctioned off on Saturday.

Menagerie for sale

Creditors snare surgeon who once stalked animals

SILVER-MEDAL KILL: Before

sheep lived in Bulgaria.

running into Jones, this Mouflon

By GEOFFREY TOMB Herald Staff Writer

FORT MYERS — It is the eyes you remember. Nearly 1,000 dead eyes staring. Row after row of eyes, plus ears, noses, throats, hooves, paws, tails, gorgeous fur coats and stiff hair. And the silence.

A Noah's Ark of almost 500 big game trophy animals, many male and female pairs, are standing or m o u n t e d, cheek by jowl in four silent rooms, glass eyes staring. Saturday, they all go on the auction block auction block to help satisfy debts.

Two wolverines, one eating a ptarmigan, are in the family room next to the big screen television, along with a great snowy owl, a gray fox and a portrait of the hunter and his wife, Patricia.

In another room, guarding French doors to a swimming pool, are two 18-foot male giraffes, one from South Africa, the other from Zimbabwe. A white sable rhino, as big as a Toyota, is parked in a corner, overshadowed by a Russian brown bear, standing eight feet high, and an Arctic musk ox.

A third room contains 20 deer and six American turkeys. This is known as a grand slam of turkeys.

All were killed, or "taken" as hunters prefer. by one man, a

Photos by MARICE COHN BAND / Herald Staff

TILL DEATH DO US PART: Harris Quillian Jones Jr. kept this pair of lions together, even after killing them.